Feasibility of Constructing Tunnel

Board of Public Works, Which Also Considers Using Colonial
Railroad Tunnel for Vehicles—
Other Matters of Importance.

T. street committee of the board of public works will shortly take up with the officials of the West Shore railroad the feasibility of a plan suggested Tuesday evening by Mayor Morris Block to eliminate traffic congestion on Broadway. The mayor's plan is brief as to have a tunnel built under the railroad tracks from Summer street to Spring street.

In talking over the matter the mayor stated he had been considering the plan for some time. By turning the tunnel at the place suggested traffic for uptown could be diverted into Pine Grove avenue, hence into Summer street and through the proposed tunnel which could connect with Sterling street.

Whether the guns could be carried out or whether the east would be problem. Major Bock said he did not know and he suggested that the matter be referred to the street manager, corporation counsel, city engineer and street superintendent. He came up with the West Shore

11. The board also discussed where it will be possible for the trailer to be driven to the Colonial Park and to the Broadway tracks station, using the turn-off at the West, where crossing them it should be that it might be possible to use the turn-off for other traffic. The question of whether the Colonial Park was wide enough to accommodate two cars was also discussed.

ated. The city engineer was directed to measure a width of the tunnel and ascertain if it could be closed. The street committee will go along with the trolley company the matter of closing the tunnel.

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Prohibition in Actual Practice

Presence of Bottle of Whiskey in Private Room at Marlborough Hotel Used by Agents as Basis for Complaint Charging Possession for Sale.

Another practical illustration of how the total number of "cases" for alleged violation of the Volstead law may be piled up by the prohibition enforcement bureau is furnished by the cases against Peter McMullen and Edward McGowan, both of Marlborough, which were dismissed by Federal Commissioner Boyle in New York city last week.

The prohibition enforcement squad visited Marlborough some time ago and called at the hotels of Mr. McMullen and Mr. McGowan. Both hotels have been in existence for many years, but because they did not go out of business when the prohibition law was passed they have been objects of suspicion on the part of prohibitionists. The two hotels are among the few old-fashioned hotels where old-fashioned country cooking still prevails in the preparation of meals, and both places are much sought after by people having business in that section of the county who prefer substantial food served in good style to the catch-as-catch-can refreshments served in the prohibition-approved lunch stands.

At the McGowan hotel, the prohibition agents found one bottle of whiskey in the private room of Mr. McGowan. A similar condition was found at the McMullen hotel. The prohibition agents did not find any liquor in the barroom of either hotel, and did not see any evidences of liquor either being given away or sold at either place. The agents, however, notified both proprietors to appear for a hearing in New York city on charges of violating the Volstead law.

When the cases were called, lack of evidence resulted in counsel for Mr. McMullen and Mr. McGowan moving for dismissal of the complaints. It was discovered also that the search warrants for each place described Marlborough as being in "Orange county," and in the McGowan case, the location of the hotel was stated in the warrant as being on the opposite side of the street.

Both the McGowan and McMullen cases, together with fifty-three other complaints for alleged violation of the prohibition law, in other sections, were dismissed.

Aside from putting the hotel proprietors to the expense of a trip to New York and employing a lawyer to represent them, and the inconvenience involved, prohibition won another great victory in Marlborough.

KEEPING WELL*WHOOPIING COUGH IS NO JOKE

DR. FREDERICK B. GREEN

Editor of "HEALTH"

WHOOPIING COUGH is generally regarded as one of the mildest and least important of children's diseases. It is often regarded almost as a joke. Sometimes mothers, ignorant of the danger, deliberately expose their children to it so they can "get it and have it over with."

But whooping cough is no joke, as most mothers and all doctors know. Any disease which kills one-half of all the babies under one year which take it is rather a grim joke. During the second year 27 per cent die. Between the second and fifth years 18 per cent die. Over 90 per cent of all cases and about 97 per cent of all deaths from whooping cough are in children under five years old.

The great danger is not in the disease itself but in the pneumonia that often follows it.

Whooping cough is caused by a germ which grows in the lungs and throat. When the sick child coughs, it throws out drops of moisture which contain quantities of these germs. The child breathes them in and in five to seven to ten days develops the disease. It can also be carried from the sick to the well child by state pencil lead pencils, apples, candy, especially all-day suckers, gum or anything which is passed from one child to another.

The symptoms are those of an ordinary cold with a slight cough and fever. Soon the cough changes to the peculiar "whoop" from which the disease gets its name. This is due to the closing up of the throat with mucus. There may be half a dozen or as many as forty or fifty of these spasms in twenty-four hours. The disease usually lasts for about six weeks but may last for four months. The danger is in the pneumonia which may develop in the weakened child and cause speedy death.

Whooping cough is a dangerous disease. Don't take any chances. Keep your child away from children who may have it. Don't let it play with infected children. If your child does get it, protect it from cold and exposure until the disease has run its course.

Marabou Is Used on Chiffon Gown

Dainty Trimming Is Usually Most Effective When Colors Match.

In a recent showing of new models, says the Boston Globe, several frocks which attracted considerable interest were simple affairs of chiffon or satin. Their distinctive note lay in the use of clipped marabou for trimming.

For some time there has been a good deal of talk about the revival of marabou and one or two imported models had wide bands around the hem and forming a huge collar.

These new frocks, however, are striking exponents of the use of this trimming on youthful dance frocks. They are really charming and possess a slight Russian appearance that is decidedly picturesque. As a rule the marabou matches the color of the material and is especially effective in white, shell pink and black.

Waist Buyers Showing Interest in New Tunics

Waist buyers in the New York market are exhibiting a great deal of interest in the tunic blouse, both for display and for the purpose of giving it prominence early in the season to test its chances for popularity.

That its chances are exceptionally good this year is generally agreed, even by those who know that it made no great headway in past seasons, because it is now so widely accepted in Paris and figures so largely in the importations of models. The influence of the tunic on fall fashions is shown. It is pointed out by the United Waist League of America, by the fact that even dress designs this year show a development of the tunic idea. It is further pointed out that, with the idea of the long silhouette line being broken a few inches above the hem once firmly implanted, the practical value of having several tunics to one satin underslip will be a powerful sales argument.

Among the early showings of the forty-inch tunic are a number of beaded models which recommend themselves to the mature figure because, being weighted, they cling and fall in at the bottom edge. Some elaborate models of cut velvet and many of the embroidered silk are also shown. Even the tailored mode is included in the tunic model, as is witnessed by one with a rather high neck and long, tight sleeves. The only decorations of this blouse are white organdie cuffs and collars. As the tunic, generally, is being developed in such a variety of fabrics, styles and manner of trimming the manufacturers are convinced that it is bound to succeed when it has been properly shown and exploited by the retailers.

Ears and Earrings and Suggestions for Beauty

Ears have a distinct message to the physiognomist. Your character, your tendencies are revealed by the shape and color and size of your ears. And the beauty specialist is always concerned with ears, putting heavy cream into the skin where the ears meet the jaw because there and around the eyes come the first fine lines of age.

People with very long ear lobes should never wear earrings, says a writer in the Delineator. Earrings add chic and brilliance to the woman of the world type, heighten the lure of the Oriental type, deepen the hiddenness of the mysterious woman, accentuate the charm of the quaint one; but we have yet to see the woman to whom they do not add a few years. If you're the child type, with wide eyes and bobbed hair and with that magic quality that can wipe out lines by a flash of joy and suddenly look twenty when you're forty, or if you're the boy type, never wear earrings no matter what the occasion is. It's suicide. And, of course, never wear earrings on too prominent ears.

And whatever you are, don't have your ears pierced. The modern earrings just clutch and hang on. Always rouge the lobe of the ear if you rouge your cheeks. Just a little rosy tip end. And even if you don't rouge your cheeks, but have waxy-looking ears, rouge your ears. It adds to that look of radiant health, being "in the pink."

Hose and Shoes to Match

Where the best-dressed women gather this season the change in hosiery styles is readily discernible. Instead of the startling array of colored hose of shades contrasting with the color of the shoe, there is seen a decided tendency to match the hose to the shoes in color at least, though a lighter shade of the same color is sometimes chosen. This desirable turn of the mode is due to the rogue of kid shoes which demand harmony rather than contrast.

CURRENT OFFERINGS

AT THE THEATERS

Lively is mild compared to the ginger displayed by the five vaudeville acts at the Kingston Opera House the first half of this week and which closes their three day engagement tonight at seven and nine o'clock. The same five acts made a big hit at the Elks' celebration Monday night at the Armory in Catskill. The photoplay tonight is Katherine MacDonald, the American beauty in a story of back stage life "Chastity." There will be no performances on Thursday on account of the Democratic rally but an all new vaudeville program of five exceptional acts and the photoplay "Not For Sale" will be the attraction for Friday and Saturday.

Betty Compson in "The Female" will close a three day run at Keeney's tonight and this picture adapted from the story by Cynthia Stockley has attracted hundreds of people who claimed it a better photoplay than the story. For three days starting tomorrow Richard Barthelmess in "Twenty-one," an up-to-the minute story of love and romance in real life. Dorothy MacKall heads an excellent supporting cast in a picture filled with the spirit of youth. Mr. Oakley will arrange an entirely new musical program for the organ to fit the theme of the picture.

Tonight is your last time to view the excellent vaudeville that has been presented at the Orpheum for the first half of the week and also the last showing of Harry Carey in "The Lightning Rider." Tomorrow starts an all-new show—vaudeville de luxe, featuring James K. Wesley, in a playlet entitled "Family Troubles," assisted by Janet White. The new picture, a first run Paramount is "Code of the Sea."

At the Auditorium today William Fox presents the Gouverneur Morris masterpiece, "You Can't Get Away With It," featuring Percy Marmont and Betty Bouton. "You Can't Get Away With It" is the story of a working girl who defied conventions to gain love and luxury.

Crystals add a touch of the brilliancy that serves to accentuate its youthful charm.

Lace and Ribbon Hold Popularity for Summer

With the coming of summer we naturally look into our wardrobes and take stock of the things needed to add to our comfort during the warm months. This year lace and ribbon of every description are going to be used extensively, and it would be well to obtain dresses with these necessary style requisites if any at all are to be purchased.

It is true that the majority of the dresses are going to be strictly tailored as were the spring coats and suits, but even on these plain frocks lace will appear and will not be found superfluous. Crocheted lace will adorn the dresses of the heavier material such as linen or rep, but will be used mainly as an insertion.

On the georgie and silk dresses fine lace will be used for ruffles, insertions, and trimming. In some of the shops many dresses are being shown with rows and rows of narrow lace arranged horizontally down the front, with a flounce of the wider lace around the bottom of the dress.

Colored laces will also be very popular and will be used on frocks of an entirely different color, such as a blue dress with buff-colored lace.

To a certain extent ribbons have always been favored, but this summer they will be used more profusely than before and in a different manner. The new printed foulard dresses have collars and cuffs made of bright-colored ribbon and very wide ribbon of the same color is used for a scarf which is attached to the back of the collar. Sport models are designed in the same way. Taffeta ribbon is being employed to make dainty little flowers to trim the more delicate summer frocks.

Colored Heels Worn to Match Jewelry Outfit

Colored heels are being worn a great deal, especially if one has adopted the emerald and pearl combination in one's jewelry, in which case one's heels below a white frock may be green as bits of Ireland and quite as lively. "Emeralds and pearls," of course, may be translated "imitation," for even the smartest women wear the three strands of pearls fastened at front or back with a sort of brooch of imitation emeralds. Then, too, there is the string made of about five pearls, followed by a persistent emerald, five pearls again, and so on. Green, one sees, is decidedly chic this year.

WHO PAYS?

Making available to the public the amount of income tax paid to the Federal government by individuals and corporations is extremely pleasing to LaFollette and his followers who point with pride to their efforts to let every man know what others are doing. Their cry has been that corporations were escaping taxation, but examination of the returns in various Internal Revenue districts does not bear out such assumption. They are among the heaviest income taxpayers, outside of a dozen or less individuals who have amassed wealth far beyond the dreams of most corporations.

One of the largest tobacco manufacturing concerns in America paid income taxes of more than two million dollars. Men of the LaFollette type are gleeful because such a large tax was paid and hope the corporations will be required to pay more taxes. Thereby, they say, the individual will be relieved of taxes. But who really paid the two million dollars tax of the tobacco company? Wasn't the tax really paid by the man who uses tobacco?

If the tobacco company had reduced the price of tobacco so as to sell it exactly at cost, there would not have been any profit whatever in its year's business, consequently the tobacco company would not have had to pay any taxes. That would have meant that two million dollars more would have had to come out of other taxpayers. But the tobacco company was entitled to sell its product at a profit which would give some return to its stockholders, whether they are employees who invested their wages in the company's stock or bought their stock in the open market—the stock represents cash actually invested in the concern. But the tobacco company must also add enough to the cost price to insure payment of taxes, and so the taxes are added to the selling price, and the tobacco user finally pays the tax. If heavier taxes are imposed, he will pay them, because it is apparent that the tobacco company cannot produce money for taxes or any other purpose except by profits on its product.

What applies to the tobacco company applies with equal force to every other corporation and individual in business, except that corporation taxes are higher, generally, than individual taxes. The taxes are not based on net profits, as that term is generally understood, because the earnings used in expanding the business by the purchase of new machinery must be taxed without reference to the purpose for which the earnings are used.

It is nice to know that corporations pay taxes. It is just as nice to know that individuals pay their taxes. The only difference is in the amount paid; the amount paid by the small taxpayer is just as much public property, under the law, as the amount paid by the big taxpayer. But in the last analysis, whether the tax be large or small, whether paid by a corporation or individual, it is the consumer who pays. And we are all consumers. Until a corporation or an individual in business is able to produce profits out of the air, the product sold to the consumer must not only furnish the profits on which taxes are based but must be the vehicle for collecting the tax from the person who ultimately pays—the consumer.

ARTHUR F. BOUTON.

The senate of New York state always has been recognized as one of the most important lawmaking bodies in the country because of the high character of its members and the consideration of laws for the Empire State which naturally is given by its members. From the earliest days of the state Ulster county has been represented by men of ability whose high standard has been maintained during the past two years by Senator Arthur F. Bouton of Roxbury. Those who have come in contact with Senator Bouton in connection with any matter connected with the state can best appreciate his painstaking efforts at all times to serve the people of Ulster, Delaware and Greene counties. Without regard to their political affiliation, he has devoted himself without stint to obtaining for them what they wished. His promptness in worthy of emulation by public officers both of higher and lower degree, procrastination has no hiding place in his make-up. He has been true to the high ideals of Republicanism, never has attempted to shirk responsibility or duty and always has been true to his trust. Well versed in the law by reason of his professional training, familiar with business, industrial and agricultural activities through constant personal experience with all of them, possessing mature judgment, able and honest, Senator Bouton has shown every qualification which entitles him to re-election. A vote for him will be a vote to maintain American manhood and ideals at the forefront in legislative affairs in Albany.

CHANGING FOOD WITH THE YEARS.

One of the humorous anecdotes told sometimes, is that about the colored man who was asked to take a job at the circus.

One of his duties was to put his head in the lion's mouth.

He strongly objected and turned down the job.

The manager said "Why the lion won't hurt you. He was brought up on milk."

The colored man's reply was "So was I brought up on milk, but I eats meat now."

I was wondering whether you ever give a thought to the fact, that when you are a youngster, milk is your staple article of food, later you eat meat and all kinds of other foods; and then in later life you go back to the simple foods of childhood again. I say you go back, but do you?

As a matter of fact it is only common sense when you think about it. As a child, your digestive organs, your glands, all of you in fact, is still in a state of gradual growth. Therefore the simplest forms of food are indicated.

At maturity—past twenty—you can eat anything or everything, because your system has reached its full development. You work hard, or play hard, and everything goes along all right.

As you reach middle age, working or playing less, if you are wise you will cut down somewhat on the amount of food, but you will still eat anything and everything.

But what about later in life?

This is where the mistake is made so often.

Our life insurance companies tell us that it is not the stout old people who live the longest.

That "spare" people, or those not overweight at least, make their best risks in old age.

Why?

Because most of these folks are not big eaters, nor do they eat the kinds of food that they ate when they were young or middle aged. They have gone back to a smaller amount of food daily, and to the simpler forms of food, such as milk, bread, and the vegetables, and you can see the reason.

Their glands, their organs, all parts of them are now in a state of growing weakness, are different than they were in young or middle life.

And so those weakened organs and tissues want but the simplest forms of food.

Grape Growers' Bumper Crop

Southern Ulster Producers Have Bumper Crop and Enjoy Prosperity—Money Plentiful—Where Ulster's Fruit Goes.

The grape season in southern Ulster, which is nearing its end, has been one of the most prosperous that grape growers have ever known. Some of the southern Ulster grapes have been placed in cold storage along with other fruits, and the harvest season for fruit will continue for some days yet, although it will not be as active as it has been.

The special fruit train which has been run from Marlborough and intermediate points since the middle of June has been discontinued by the American Railway Express Company and the West Shore Railroad Company, but shipments by express and freight still continue. The special fruit train, starting at Marlborough, where shipments were heaviest, also took on board heavy shipments at Highland and made a third stop at Ulster Park. The train then proceeded to Albany, whence transshipment was made to New England points, northern New York and Canada. Many carloads of fruit were also shipped by freight, and the Central Hudson Steamboat Company also carried large quantities.

New York city also was a heavy buyer of southern Ulster fruit throughout the season, but New England appears to have been the bulk of the product of the fruit farms. Western New York canneries purchased large quantities of small fruits, some of which were shipped to canners of the north central states.

Most of the strawberries from the southern Ulster fruit belt found their way to New Haven, Hartford and Meriden, Conn., to Montreal, Canada, and several up-state points.

Pears were shipped principally to Bridgeport, Montreal, Providence, R. I., Columbus, Ohio, and Louisville, Kentucky.

Ulster county grapes were shipped mostly to Boston and smaller cities of Massachusetts, although several carloads of Highland grapes went to Portland, Maine, where they brought good prices. Grapes grown in the vicinity of Highland were shipped principally to New York city by boat and many truck loads were taken to New Jersey.

Currants from all sections of southern Ulster were bought largely in Brockport, N. Y.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Landersville, N. J.; Indianapolis, Indiana; Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati.

Clintondale growers have made use of the storage plant of the Clintondale Fruit Growers' Cooperative Association to a large extent.

Apples have not yet been shipped in large quantities, except for export, for which purpose between four and five carloads have been sent out by the Fruit Growers' Exchange.

There is plenty of ready money now in southern Ulster as the result of payments for late fruit shipments, and deposits at both the First National Bank of Marlborough and the First National Bank at Milton show gratifying results. Deposits at the Marlborough bank for August and September were larger than for the corresponding months a year ago, and its last report shows that on October 10 the amount of individual deposits subject to check was $259,468.28, and time deposits amounted to $688,916.21.

"THEY ARE WEARING"

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Novel shoes are much in evidence. Black patent leather shoes are frequently seen with colored strappings, often perforated in even dots. A popular "fancy" slipper remarked repeatedly, shows the back of light brown kid, with the vamp of black patent leather, and a black grosgrain ribbon bow worn over a small tongue.

Other pedal novelties, in more bizarre effects show snake skin overalls, and one-strapped pumps of dyed suede simulating antelope.

The number of felt hats is still pronounced, shown with oddly turned small brims. Felt toques with high tara shaped cuffs, in bright colors, having glycerined ostrich brushes close to the face are also popular.

Colors, like scarlet turquoise blue and green seen in a number of two-piece tailormades in short jacket types, add a bright spot to the avenue.

Dress coats of satin and kasha made with untrimmed scarf collars and finished with a luxurious band of fur around the border continue to appear and are always arresting.

Monkeys for trimming on a tan fabric of kasha-like weave gave a striking effect and was worn with a tiny turban of black that modified the ensemble.

Relieves Their Colds—Builds Them Up.

At one time or another most people are troubled with persistent coughs—coughs which hang on and develop into serious illness unless relieved. It is at just such times that Father John's Medicine is particularly valuable.

Mrs. J. P. Trageses, of R. R. 2, Bucyrus, Kansas, says: "Father John's Medicine keeps all my children healthy. It always relieves their coughs and helps them make flesh and strength when they are run down. I wish I could tell more mothers about it."

Its history of more than 69 years of successful establishment Father John's Medicine is as safe for all the family to take when they have a cough or cold.

Arthur F. Bouton For Senator

Satisfactory Record of Ulster-Delaware-Greene Counties' Representative at Albany Insures His Re-election by Increased Majority.

State Senator Arthur F. Bouton, although active in public affairs of the Twenty-ninth Senatorial district for many years, had never been a candidate for office outside of his native town of Roxbury, Delaware county, until he was nominated by the Republican party for state senator in 1922, and elected by a big majority. Senator Bouton is now seeking re-election and should be returned to the state senate by an even larger majority than that given him two years ago.

Senator Bouton was born in Roxbury, July 1, 1872, and always has remained a resident of that village. His early education was received in the common schools and completed at the Albany Law School, from which he was graduated in 1897. He was admitted to the bar on July 6, 1897, and has been in the active practice of his profession ever since. He has always been a hard worker and his activities have brought him in close contact with the people of every section of the Twenty-ninth Senatorial district, which he has so ably represented in the state senate for the past two years.

When twenty-one years old, just after having cast his first vote, Senator Bouton was elected town clerk of the town of Roxbury, and was re-elected the following year. When the Delaware County Farm and Home Bureau was organized, Senator Bouton became one of its most active members. He was also interested in the development of the New York State Agricultural School at Delhi, and so naturally was selected by Governor Charles S. Whitman as one of the board of trustees of the school.

Senator Bouton thoroughly understands the important agricultural and dairying as well as the business interests of the district from actual experience and study of them.

Fraternally Senator Bouton has been highly honored by the organizations with which he is affiliated. He became a member of the Odd Fellows when 21 years old and is a past grand of Roxbury Lodge, No. 608, of Roxbury; past chief patriarch of Grand Gorge Encampment; past district deputy grand master and past grand marshal of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows of the state of New York. Since he was a young man he has been a member of the Masonic fraternity, his membership including Couer de Lion Lodge, No. 571, of Roxbury, of which he is a past master; Delta Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Stamford; Ancient City Council, Royal and Select Masters of Kingston; Roundout Commandery, No. 52, Knights Templar, of Kingston; and Cyprus Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Albany; in addition to which he has served as district deputy grand master of Masons of the Delaware-Sullivan county district.

In addition to his law practice and agricultural activities, Senator Bouton is president of the National Bank of Roxbury, and secretary and treasurer of the Golden Seal Assurance Society, which is engaged in life, health and accident insurance. The Bouton family has been closely identified with Delaware county for many generations. The family is of French-Huguenot extraction, and after leaving France settled in England, whence John Bouton, the paternal ancestor, came to America with the Puritans. The family later removed from Massachusetts to Connecticut and about the time of the Revolutionary War removed to Delaware county, of which they were among the pioneer settlers.

Senator Bouton's legislative career during the past two years has given entire satisfaction to his constituents. He has performed his duties conscientiously and has displayed sound judgment in all matters which have come before the legislature for action.

Filled with confidence of a continuing fidelity to his trust, the voters of the Twenty-ninth Senatorial district are certain to return Senator Bouton to Albany by a largely increased majority.

British Election Cost $400,000,000

Candidates' Expenses Strictly Regulated by Law—A Candidate May Expended Ten Cents per Voter in City Constituency, Fourteen Cents in Rural Sections.

By Telegraph to The Freeman: London, Oct. 29.—It is estimated that the general election now in progress will cost the country, directly and indirectly, fully $400,000,000. This means that Britain has spent approximately $1,200,000,000 in elections during the past two years, or enough to have solved its unemployment problems three times over.

The greater amount of this tremendous sum is lost due to interruption and uncertainty of business during the election. It is estimated that during the time between a dissolution of Parliament and an election there is a daily loss to the country of at least $30,000,000 through this cause.

The smaller portion of the $400,000,000 is candidates' electioneering expenses.

Candidates' expenses are strictly regulated by law, and if he goes beyond the figure he is legally entitled to spend he is liable to very severe penalties, which are often enforced.

A candidate in a city constituency is allowed to spend ten cents per voter in actual electioneering expenses, while in a rural constituency he is allowed to spend fourteen cents.

The number of voters in Britain is slightly in excess of 21,000,000. The total number of candidates—Liberals, Conservatives and Laborites—is expected to be almost 1,500. This means, roughly, that approximately thirty cents is allowed by law to be spent on each elector. So that candidates are allowed to lavish about $7,000,000 on the electorate in the direction of mail charges and literature only.

Every candidate must deposit $750 with the nominations officer on his nomination. If he fails to secure 25 per cent of the total vote polled he forfeits this sum.

The two wealthiest parties are the Conservatives and the Liberals, while the poorest is the Labor Party.

SAYS NOTHING CAN SUPPLANT THE FARM

Synthetic Foods Not Practicable, Chemist Declares.

Predictions often are made that some day we shall have all our food made in chemical factories, out of air and water and carbonic-acid gas; that even farming soon is to be a thing of the past, and that chemically prepared food will come to us in tablets that we shall nibble.

These notions are mere guesses, unsound economically. The farm is not to be supplanted by the chemical factory, writes Dr. Lilwood Hendrick, noted chemist, in the Popular Science Monthly, although the farm already is beginning to draft the chemical and biological laboratories for its own purposes.

Even if we chemists could make tasty and nutritious foods of inanimate matter, instead of things that have been through the process of life, of things that have grown on the farm—and it is a fact that we don't know how to do it—there isn't power enough available to make the food for the world in factories. We should require coal or water power or fuel oil, while the plants and trees use the power of light direct from the sun for their growth. We cannot use light for power. Every green leaf has us beaten in this respect.

Again, our internal organs are so constructed that if we undertook to live on tablets without the necessary roughage or coarseness of food they would collapse and the whole world soon would come down with an international bowel complaint. Let's keep our feet on the ground. Men of science have to do so. But don't be disappointed. Science, working along practical lines, already is accomplishing amazing things in solving our food problems. It has learned to extract elements necessary to plant growth from the air, from the sewage of cities, from the smoke of factory chimneys. It is conserving our crops through the development of the canning industry. It has taught the bakers to produce better and cheaper bread. It has helped crops by destroying insect pests. It has studied foods in the laboratory and taught us how to balance our diet according to the requirements of our bodies.

Science does not move ahead with a brass band, with trumpets and drums; its progress results from hard, slow work with here and there a happy reward.

The Edelweiss.

The Edelweiss is an Alpine perennial woolly plant of the Composite family, found in Switzerland, the Tirol, Carinthia, Alpine Austria, and Siberia. It bears heads of flowers surrounded by woolly bracts and sage-green leaves. It is famous, not for its beauty, but for its severity and the difficulty of obtaining it in its elevated haunts. It is so rare in Switzerland that several cantons protect it by law. It is readily cultivated in gardens in America and Europe. In Swiss poetry and legend it plays a prominent part.

Absent-Mindedness Plus

A Beech Grove merchant was laughing over the absent-minded customer, who recently sent her little girl to the store with instruction to stay there until her mother telephoned an order. After the child had been there an hour or so, the mother called and said she had forgotten all about sending her.

"It reminds me," said the merchant, "of the time when I was a boy. We lived about a quarter of a mile from the town. It was our custom to walk to the village in the evening to get the mail and loaf a while at the general store. One evening dad was very tired and instead of walking, hitched up the old mare and drove into town. About nine o'clock just as I had taken off my shoes to go to bed, dad came whistling up the front walk.

"Why, dad," I said, "didn't you drive to town this evening?"

A queer expression came over his face and in a tone of great authority he said, "Go right down there and get that horse." Then I wished I had kept still."—Indianapolis News.

Dust Used as Evidence

The French police are making a microscopic examination of dirt found upon the clothing of suspected criminals. After cross-examination the suspects are stripped of their clothing whose surface dust is first examined under a strong microscope. A vacuum cleaner is next applied to draw out other dirt into a pan. In some instances heating is used to separate foreign matter. From the dirt thus secured the detectives determine whether the suspect has been telling the truth. One murderer tried to prove an alibi by saying that he had slept in an open field the night of the crime. Microscopic examination of his clothing showed that he had slept in a quarry. A carpenter was connected with a murder by means of sawdust found on a piece of overall which the victim had torn from his assailant and which was found at the scene of the crime. The value of the plan has been in breaking down the bravado of criminals. They frequently confess when shown that their first stories were lies.

Origin of Paved Roads

Our modern dustless concrete roads may be said to have originated in a dusty limestone highway of England, says Popular Science Monthly. Just 100 years ago Joseph Aspdin, a mason of Leeds, England, discovered that if the dust of limestone roads was mixed with clay and burned at a high temperature the resulting mass when ground would produce a material that hardened when mixed with mortar. This substance looked like building stone quarried at Portland, so he called it Portland cement.

Old Fashioned Molasses Candy

REAL, down-south molasses, with the teasing, tantalizing, mellow flavor of the sugar cane—that's what makes this candy so delicious.

Here is the recipe:

Put 1/2 cup butter in kettle; allow to melt over fire. Then add 2 cups Gold Label Brer Rabbit Molasses, 1 cup granulated sugar and 1/2 cup water. Stir well. Let boil for a few minutes without stirring; then stir constantly until, tried in cold water, it forms brittle threads. Just before taking from the fire, add 1 teaspoon vinegar. Pour in buttered pan. When cool enough, pull until it becomes porous and light colored. Cut in small pieces with knife or large shears and give the children and grown folks all they want.

TEST NEW METHOD OF RAISING SEA TREASURE

Inventors Strive to Regain Gold Cargo Which Went to the Bottom in 1799.

Terschelling, Holland.—A new process for salvaging sand-buried treasure of the gold cargo of the British frigate Lutine, which has baffled a century's efforts, has just been put into operation here with every promise of success.

The Lutine was wrecked on a sand-bank near this island during a violent gale in the night of October 9, 1799. Its crew of more than 400 perished. Its cargo consisted of several million dollars worth of gold bars and specie.

Fifty feet of sand covers the wreck and repeated efforts have resulted in the recovery of only about $300,000 and the ship's bell, now at Lloyd's in London. At first divers were put to work, but later machinery was used to get at the wreck through the thick layer of sand by means of suction pumps.

Now a new apparatus, invented by a Dutch engineering firm, is being tried. It does away with the suction process and substitutes hydraulic pressure. A tube is driven into the sand and steel grapplers at the bottom seize any objects beneath it. The machine can work in any weather that is not too rough for the salvage vessel to be out.

During three days that the new apparatus worked recently no gold bars were raised, but indications are certain, according to the inventors, that the right spot has been struck and hopes are entertained that the rest of the Lutine's precious cargo, estimated at between $3,000,000 and $10,000,000, soon will be wrested from Davy Jones' locker.

U. S. Passport Shop Does Record-Breaking Business

Washington.—The passport business has been a flourishing one for Uncle Sam this summer. It has strengthened the claim of attaches of the division of passport control of the State department that theirs is the one unit of the department that more than pays for itself.

During the months of May, June and July, passport applications averaged between 1,200 and 1,400 a day.

The great majority of the passports are written in Washington, only a few emergency ones being issued in the field.

The abnormal rush this year was occasioned by certain conventions abroad, and the competition among steamship lines to secure the traffic by offering lower passenger rates.

All the countries of Europe, save Belgium, Switzerland and Holland, require visas for which a charge of $10 is made, and must be obtained by the visitor before entering the country. The Irish Free State has been the latest country to fall in line and asks the customary "ten spot" from sojourners in the Emerald Isle.

Uncle Sam started charging a $10 fee for issuing passports in July, 1920.

Although no passports or visa is officially required for Americans traveling to Mexico, Canada or Cuba, the State department gets numerous applications for them, as a protection.

A passport is valid for one year and is subject to renewal for another twelve months at the end of that period.

Eskimos of Alaska Are Expert Carvers in Ivory

Nome, Alaska.—Every year since Nome can remember the entire native village of King Island makes a pilgrimage to the city, arriving about July 4 and remaining most of the summer.

The natives, a clean, industrious and healthy lot, make the trip of approximately 100 miles in boats which they build from the hides of walrus. Seven of these boats carry the whole population, including all their possessions.

The King Islanders are clever carvers. Arriving in Nome with several tons of ivory, they carve the rough tusks into crib boards, gavel, forks, knives, spoons, umbrella handles, buttons and numerous other things. The merchants and people of Nome patronize them liberally, so that the camp usually collects thousands of dollars during the season, and these profits they put back into circulation by purchasing supplies for the next winter.

These Eskimos enter the summer athletic contests at Nome and often develop athletes of ability. At other times they provide entertainments with their orchestra.

Old Tree Bears

Carthage, Mo.—At the home of Mrs. S. H. King in this city is an apple tree that has produced fruit for 64 years. It was planted in 1860 by G. M. Robinson, who owned the property at that time. A few years ago a part of the tree withered and died and that part was cut off. The remaining part of the tree is 40 inches around. The apple is known as the summer astrakhan.

Rat Douses Lights

Houston, Texas.—Houston Heights and other sections of the city which depend upon the Pasadena plant of the Houston Lighting and Power company for electricity were thrown in darkness recently when a rat, walked into the principal distributing drum and caused a short circuit. It took 30 minutes for workmen to get the charred body of the rodent from the mass of burned-out wires.

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

Productive Soil First Requisite for Success in Farming, Says Cook

The improvement in the quality of market milk and the development of commercialized dairying from the old days of a summer dairy dried off in winter were selected by H. E. Cook as signs of the progress in agriculture in a radio address from Station WGY Schenectady on Monday, Oct. 27. Mr. Cook broadcasts on the New York state Farm Bureau Federation program.

Mr. Cook declared that this progress could not be entirely credited to the farmer, however, but to the city boards of health and other educational forces.

Real and permanent farm success, the speaker said, depends upon the productivity of the soil. "A few dollars that may be squeezed out of a scanty soil and invested in securities does not represent to me successful farming," said Mr. Cook. "Better by far should the money go into soil improvement, thereby blessing the owner and giving to his successors and to the community and the nation a more permanent legacy."

Federation to Hold Annual Meeting Nov. 6 and 7

The New York State Farm Bureau Federation and the New York State Home Bureau Federation will hold their annual meeting at the Hotel Onondaga, Syracuse, on Nov. 6 and 7, according to announcement by E. V. Underwood, secretary of the Farm Bureau Federation. The dates have been changed from those originally announced Nov. 11 and 12, because these latter conflicted with several nation-wide conferences.

J. W. Coverdale, formerly secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and now secretary-treasurer of the Grain Marketing company, will be the chief speaker at the meeting. Liberty Hyde Bailey and Mrs. Anna Botsford Comstock will talk informally to the delegates on the evening of Nov. 6.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Chicago on Dec. 8, 9 and 10 will be elected at the Syracuse meeting, as well as the officers of the two state associations.

Demonstration Train Teaches Fewer and Better Cows

The Dairymen's League Co-operative association, the state department of Farms and Markets, the College of Agriculture at Syracuse university, the New York State Holstein-Friesian association, New York State Guernsey Breeders, New York State Jersey Breeders and New York State Ayrshire Breeders' association are co-operating with the New York Central railroad in a demonstration train carrying a big agricultural exhibit which began on Oct. 20 a four weeks' trip through the Empire state.

Fewer and better cows is the chief message which the train is carrying to dairymen. According to speakers traveling with the train, the dairy cows of New York state are divided into three groups. One-third are profitable; one-third are self-sustaining, and one-third are unprofitable. The unprofitable one-third are "boarders" and should be removed from the herds, the dairymen are advised.

Ten New York Counties Take Part in National Contest

Boys and girls in ten New York counties have sent in their names to Chicago headquarters of the American Farm Bureau Federation to register in the national farm bureau essay contest. The children are writing on "Why Dad Belongs to the Farm Bureau" and their letters indicate they are delving into the subject beyond Dad's depth. Four national prize winners will have a trip to Chicago, one being selected from each geographical district. The New York State Farm Bureau is offering in addition a first prize of $10 and a second prize of $5 for the two best essays submitted in this state.

League Announces Pool Price for September Milk

The Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc., recently announced that its gross pool price for September for 3 per cent milk at the 201-210 mile freight zone is $1.93 per 100 pounds, or 21 cents more than for August.

Deductions for expenses in September amounted to 8.5 cents, making the net pool price $1.845. Deductions for certificates of indebtedness amounted to 10 cents and the cash distribution is $1.745.

Members Seek Recruits to County Farm Bureaus

In nearly every county farm bureau association in New York state members are forming committees to visit their neighbors and invite them to join the farm bureau. Farmers are asked to support the farm bureau not only because of the facilities which it offers them for self help on matters of state and national importance, but because the local bureau acts as an agricultural service station for all the farmers of the county, while only a percentage of the farmers support its activities.

A BIRTHDAY GIFT

"I must tell you this evening," said Daddy, "the story of a little boy named Jerry."

A Handsome Shiny, Black Toy Cat.

"He was three years old. It was his birthday. And in honor of the day his mother was giving him a party."

"His brother Jimmie was almost as excited about it as he was."

"There were to be some boys and girls at his party—all older than he was, but he was quite liked that."

"He was not a baby. He felt quite old."

"In fact he felt almost as old as Jimmie, who was really several years older."

"He was given a handsome, shiny, black toy cat, decorated with red, for a birthday present."

"The cat had an apron which was edged with red and had a little red pocket handkerchief in the pocket, though what a toy cat would do with a pocket handkerchief I'm sure I don't know!"

"But, anyway, it added greatly to the cat's appearance."

"Then Jerry was given a splendid fire engine and a hook-and-ladder with a little driver who sat in front. Oh, it was a splendid present, and both could go so fast—just as a fire engine and hook-and-ladder should go, of course."

"There must never be any delays when there is a fire. Even a toy fire department knew that much."

"There was another little driver for the fire engine, too."

"They had a splendid party, with cake and ice cream and candles upon the cake."

"They played games and they enjoyed themselves immensely."

"But the birthday gift that Jerry liked the best of all was one you would never, never think of guessing, so I hardly think it is worth your while to guess."

"Still you may try."

"A real, live cat," said Nancy.

"A dog," said Nick.

Daddy shook his head at both guesses.

"A kite," said Nancy.

"A toy automobile," said Nick.

"Not a kite," said Daddy, "and not a toy automobile for this birthday, as his brother Jimmie had been given one on his birthday and they shared all their toys."

"Guess again! But I don't believe you'll guess right!"

"A telephone," said Nancy.

"No, hardly that," said Daddy.

"Well, I was trying to think of something different," said Nancy.

"I see," smiled Daddy.

"A turtle," said Nick.

"No," said Daddy.

"A set of blocks," suggested Nancy.

"No," said Daddy.

"A train," shouted Nick.

"No!" shouted Daddy in return.

"A boat," said Nancy.

"No," said Daddy.

"An express cart," said Nick.

"No," said Daddy.

"Marbles," said Nancy.

"No," said Daddy.

"A rabbit," said Nick.

"No," said Daddy.

"Then I give up," said Nancy.

"So do I," said Nick.

"He said that the birthday gift he liked best of all," Daddy told them, "was a new tooth which just made its appearance on that day."

"Do you wonder I said I didn't think you'd be able to guess? But he said it was his favorite birthday present."

"No wonder we couldn't guess," said Nancy.

"No wonder," agreed Nick.

DAINTY THINGS TO SERVE

A salad that is most attractive and tasty and one that is also easily prepared is Roselle Salad.

—Remove skins from peaches, cut into halves and arrange on lettuce leaves. Serve with a dressing made from four tablespoons of oil, two tablespoons of fresh lime juice, two teaspoons of sugar, one teaspoonful of celery salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne and a few dashes of paprika, with five drops of tabasco sauce. Sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts.

Salad With Fruit Dressing.—On a bed of lettuce place a layer of celery cut into fine strips. Fill the cavity of an apricot with cream cheese moistened with French dressing and invert on the lettuce. On top arrange five strips of green pepper. Serve with Fruit Dressing.—To one-third of a cupful of French dressing add four candied cherries chopped, one candied green plum chopped, one-half slice of pineapple (candied) chopped. Shake thoroughly and serve.

Toasted Lobster Sandwich.—Remove the meat from a lobster and cut into thick slices. Sauté in butter and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place on a slice of buttered toast and cover with another slice of toast. Serve with Cream Mushroom Sauce.—Peel and chop four large mushrooms and cook five minutes in two tablespoons of butter. Add two tablespoons of flour and one cupful of this mixture boils. Just before serving add an egg yolk, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce to taste; stir until smooth, then add an egg white beaten stiff, mix and pour over the sandwich.

Oysters à la Oreciole.—Melt two tablespoons of butter, add a slice of onion and cook until a pale brown. Add a teaspoonful of flour, stir until brown, then add a cupful of tomatoes. Cook and add a pint of drained oysters and cook until the edges curl. Add a drop of tabasco sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of parsley, chopped. Serve on toast.

Waffles.—Melt two tablespoons of butter, add a slice of onion and cook until a pale brown. Add a teaspoonful of flour, stir until brown, then add a cupful of tomatoes. Cook and add a pint of drained oysters and cook until the edges curl. Add a drop of tabasco sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of parsley, chopped. Serve on toast.

It Was The Last Time She Cried

LITTLE household cares and trials gradually wear down a woman's nerves. Fortunately, modern women are on the look-out for modern methods which end such household cares.

This is proved by the growing popularity of LINIT, the remarkable new laundry starch which has ended all starching troubles.

As you know, old-fashioned starch merely coats the surface of your garments. It becomes brittle, flakes off and produces that ugly "glazy" surface. LINIT, to the contrary, penetrates your fabrics uniformly and gives a soft, pliable finish that feels and looks like linen.

Linit also eliminates lint. So Linit-starched fabrics are not as easily soiled. They retain that beautiful new sheen they had when first brought from the store.

Your grocer has LINIT—too.

Economic Dairy Exhibit Train

Will Be at New Paltz November 7 and Walden November 8—Public Invited to Inspect Its Exhibits.

The Economic Dairying Demonstration Train is operated by the New York Central Lines in cooperation with the New York State Department of Farms and Markets, the College of Agriculture of Syracuse University, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, the New York State Holstein-Friesian Association, the American Jersey Cattle Club, Guernsey Breeders' and Ayrshire Breeders' organizations. It consists of four cars carrying livestock and exhibit material illustrating bovine tuberculosis control, breeding for greater milk production and other factors entering into economic dairying.

Bovine tuberculosis control is a feature of the exhibits and of the daily program given at each stop made by the train. State institutions (farms) have a prominent part in showing records of increased production from state dairy herds, with examples of success attained in tuberculosis eradication.

"Fewer and better cows" is the train slogan, and the advantages to be obtained by eliminating "the boarder," or low-producing cow, from the dairy herd will be shown by charts and records. The programs in which the College of Agriculture at Syracuse has a part with the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, stress the above points.

The train is scheduled to stop at Coxsackie, November 6; New Paltz, November 7; Walden, November 8.

County officials, Farms Bureaus, tuberculosis control committees and dairymen generally are urged to visit the train, and see the joint offering of the various agencies interested. The importance of weighing milk and keeping daily production records will be emphasized, and county sealers of weights and measures will be in attendance.

The train started from Earlville, October 20, and will operate to November 15, making stops on the Chenango branch, West Shore from Syracuse to Albany, and thence south on the same line to the Walkkill Valley to Montgomery. From Montgomery the train will move over the Harlem and Putnam divisions, south to Brewster and north to Chatham.

SAWKILL.

Sawkill, Oct. 29.—Mrs. J. Cassidy and brother of Brooklyn are spending a several weeks' vacation with Mrs. E. McCaffrey.

Mrs. C. McLean of this place entertained a number of city guests over the week-end.

A crowd from this place attended a clam chowder supper in Ruby on Friday evening.

William Walsh of New York city is spending his vacation at Mrs. E. McCaffrey's.

R. Fraser had the misfortune of losing a valuable cow the past week.

A party from here held a dance in Ruby on Tuesday evening last, which was largely attended.

J. Leahy is having a garage erected. Thomas Lynch is doing the work.

The Rev. A. A. Cahill spent a few days in New York city the past week.

Preventing Floor Scratches

Those who have hardwood floors in their houses know the difficulty of keeping them free from furniture scratches. Pushes and slides overcome the difficulty for furniture that has straight legs, but these will not prevent rockers from scratching the floor. The best thing to do with the bottom of a rocker is to glue on a strip cut from an old felt hat. Don't let the joints come where the rocker rests when idle. The felt lasts a long time and can be renewed easily when worn.—Popular Science Monthly.

Clay Pipes and Cancer.

Keeping Millions Free From Colds and La Grippe

W. H. HILL'S LIFE WORK

Colds cause more illness than any other human ailment. Realizing this 50 years ago, W. H. Hill determined to develop a quick-acting scientifically correct cold and la grippe remedy.

Years of research brought success. Mr. Hill discovered a most remarkable formula. He backed it with energy, faith, integrity and a name that meant "satisfaction or money back."

Today more than 4,000,000 families—one-fifth of America's population—use and recommend Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine.

The formula has never been changed in a quarter century. What Hill's has done for millions, it can do for you. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait. All druggists, 30 cents.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

THE HOE PRESS.

Robert Hoe, inventor of the printing press that bears his name, was born in Leicestershire, England, 140 years ago today. He was an ingenious mechanic, and when he came to America in 1803, he joined his brother-in-law, Peter Smith, in establishing a factory for the manufacture of the hand press. Hoe made great improvements in printing processes, and the Hoe press was soon known all over the world as the best of its kind. When his health failed in 1832, he turned over the business to his son, Richard Marsh Hoe.

The founder of the firm died in 1833, but Richard Hoe, with his brothers, Robert and Peter, showed even greater inventive genius than their father. In 1847 they perfected the "lightning press" for printing newspapers. This press, of the type-revolving style, was a great improvement over anything previously used, and it was adopted by the London Times and other English journals, as well as by the leading American newspapers. The Hoe ten-cylinder press of that period attained the amazing speed of 15,000 copies an hour.

Richard Hoe subsequently invented the web-perfecting press, which was as much of an improvement over the earlier style as that had been over its predecessors.

FIRST STEAM WARSHIP.

The first steam war vessel was launched at New York 110 years ago today, October 29, 1814. It was built by Robert Fulton, who had been appointed a government engineer by the United States, for this purpose. The daddy of all the world's battleships, dreadnaughts, super-dreadnaughts and battle cruisers, was called by her builder the Demologos, but the authorities of the Infant U. S. N. at once christened her Fulton the First. As she had a speed of 2 1/2 miles per hour, she was considered a marvel—though in reality a heavy, unwieldy craft, as might be expected from the first invention.

As the Anglo-American War of 1812 had terminated before she was available, the pioneer vessel of the world's steam navies was taken to Brooklyn and used as a receiving ship until June 4, 1823, when she was accidentally blown up by a torpedo, also the invention of Fulton. It was not until 1846, long after Robert Fulton's death, that congress granted an appropriation of $76,300 to cover the inventor's claims for building the first steam war-vessel and inventing floating steam batteries.

LUCKETIA WILHELMINA WINTER

Whose maiden name was Van Morken, was born 1745, in Amsterdam, Holland. She was married to the poet, Nicolaus Simon Winter, with whose writings a great deal of her poetry was published. She was a poetess of the Dutch School, all her verses bear the impress of much careful labor, also the marks of a great deal of "polishing." She wrote the two epics, "David" and "Germanicus," also a number of miscellaneous poems, published in 1793. She died in 1795, at Leyden, Holland.

For Easier and Safer Driving

AS a result of a great national movement for traffic safety, "boulevard stops" are common in almost every city and town.

For safety's sake, the motorist must halt or slow down at every crossing. That means a constant battling with balky gears—in all cars except the Chandler; for the Chandler is the only car containing the

Traffic Transmission

Because it employs a new and simple principle, the Traffic Transmission eliminates all gear clashing.

It makes the shift from high to second or low just as silent, just as certain as the one from low to second or high.

It makes every speed change an instantaneous, noiseless snap—yet you use the clutch and gear lever exactly as in other cars.

That is why you will be amazed when you sit at the wheel of a Chandler and drive!

All models of the 1925 Chandler are powered by the famous Pikes Peak Motor and come equipped with super-size balloon tires. Four-wheel brakes are optional at a moderate additional charge. The bodies are superb examples of Fisher craftsmanship—particularly the new Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe and the new Clummy Sedan. Touring car $1585. Four-door Sedan $1995. f.o.b. Cleveland.

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents.)

Restore Normal
Living on Farm

Democratic Candidate Davis Says It is Outstanding Economic Issue of Campaign and Announces His Program to Accomplish It.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 29.—Restoration of normal living conditions among the farmers of America is the outstanding economic issue of the 1924 presidential campaign, John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee, declared here today in the second of a series of pre-election statements.

Davis pledged himself and the Democratic party to use every governmental agency, if elected, in placing agriculture upon an equal economic footing with industry. He also renewed his definite program of farm relief which, he contended, would bring back permanent prosperity to the farming interests.

The nominee's itinerary will carry him into Brooklyn tonight for a speech at the Academy of Music. He will spend Friday visiting every borough in New York and will close his campaign Saturday night with a speech at Carnegie Hall.

Davis denounced the Republican farm relief program as consisting of a reminder "that God helps only those who help themselves," of a suggestion to curtail the production and promise to have a commission of impartial experts consider the situation.

"The Democratic party, on the other hand, has a definite program by means of which it expects to restore to the farmer the economic equality of which he has been unjustly deprived," Davis added. He then cited the program which included:

1. A pledge to reduce taxation and for strict governmental economy.
2. A revision downward of the tariff.
3. Promise of lower rail and water freight rates.
4. Completion of internal waterway systems and development of waterpowers for cheaper fertilizer.
5. Stimulation of cooperative marketing by governmental assistance with creation of an export marketing corporation.
6. Extension of farm credits, and
7. Adoption of an international policy that will reopen foreign markets for American goods.

Captive Orang-Utan*Showed Intelligence

An orang-utan named Dohong, which was brought to the New York zoo from Borneo some years ago, astonished us by his intelligence. W. Reid Blair writes in the American Magazine. A gas pipe four feet long and two inches in diameter was wired to the bars at the front of his cage. The pipe itself could not be tilted or moved. Inside this pipe—in the very middle—a piece of banana was placed. Dohong, who was very fond of bananas, tried to get it. First he attempted to reach it with his hands, then his feet, and failed. He tried to loosen the pipe, but he couldn't do that. He was very much disturbed over his inability to get at that banana, and sat down to think it over. But no happy solution came to him—for the simple reason that, under the circumstances, there wasn't any.

Finally, without Dohong's knowledge, a stick two feet long with a hook in the end of it was concealed in the straw of his cage. Then Dohong was put back in the cage and we waited. In the course of 15 minutes Dohong accidentally came across the hooked stick. It didn't mean anything to him on the instant, but presently he was struck by a bright idea. He inserted the hooked end of the stick into the pipe, and, lo! out came the banana on the hook! After that, when a banana was put inside the pipe, Dohong wasted no time trying to reach it with his hands, but began looking at once for the hooked stick.

This seemed to me to indicate a high order of intelligence.

Collie Certainly Was*Clever Though Crooked

The dog story the other day seems to have attracted considerable attention, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, for in this morning's mail I received the following from an acquaintance:

"A friend of mine is a butcher, who some time ago noticed a big collie come into the shop, wag its tail and drop a letter at his feet. The meat man opened the note and discovered that it was an order, signed by the collie's master, for a piece of sausage. The dog was given the meat, and the amount charged up on the master's account. This occurred several times, and finally the butcher ceased to unfold the notes, knowing what they contained.

"The dog continued his visits more or less frequently, and when the account went in there was a kick from its owner. There was something like ten pounds of sausage charged to the animal. Its master said he had only given a dozen or so orders to the dog. He happened to be in the shop the next day when his dog came in and dropped the usual piece of paper. Then it was found that 'Nero,' noticing that the butcher didn't read the order, had been picking up stray pieces of paper, folding them, and taking them to the shop, thereby assuaging his sausage hunger."

High and Low Lands

The maximum difference between the high land and the low in the United States proper is 14,477 feet. According to the official figures, Mount Whitney, the highest point, is 14,501 feet above sea level, while Death valley, the lowest point, is 275 feet below sea level. These two points, which are both in California, are less than 90 miles apart. The difference between them seems small, however, when compared with the difference between the highest and lowest point in Asia. Mount Everest rises 29,002 feet above sea level, whereas the shores of the Dead sea are 12,290 feet below it—a difference of 41,292 feet.

Soap and Water.

Surrounded on all sides by a multitude of unseen and deadly disease germs nature has endowed mankind with a very simple and effective means of protection which is cleanliness—the chief requirement for which is the generous and frequent use of soap and water.

Why Babies Cry.

Babies never cry because they enjoy it, says a wise mother. Discomfort either from lack of care or from illness is the real reason. A pretty good guide for baby care is to regard infants as real human beings with an all-round capacity a little less in volume than an adult.

How Railroads Reduced Costs

Increased Efficiency, Decreased Time In Transit of Commodities and Additional Facilities Have Overbalanced Increased Rates.

The railroads of the country have, through efficient operation, substantially decreased the cost of living since 1920, according to an analysis of present industrial conditions just issued by five eastern railway officials. The statement represents the views of the Eastern Presidents' Conference, which includes in its membership the executive officials of fifty-two carriers.

The statement says: "Through the published statements of the third party leaders runs the implication that there is an inevitable conflict between solvent railroads and justice to producers and consumers. Thus it is charged that the railroads have increased the cost of living and that the country would have been better off if it had refused to pay the sums necessary to sustain good transportation.

"Such ideas are untrue, and fraught with great danger. Beyond any other nation we Americans are dependent upon railroad transportation, and a failure to understand sound policy on this question would harm us more than any country in the world.

"The attempt since 1920 to treat the needs of our railroads in a more constructive manner has not increased the cost of living, but on the contrary has helped to decrease it.

"Practically every element of cost in the production of transportation has increased at least twice as much as rates have advanced. But the railroads by liberal capital investment for additional facilities and equipment and by increase efficiency have been able to meet present costs out of rates which advanced only about half as much as costs have.

"If the so-called policy of operation for service at cost, and not for profit, had been adopted in 1920, it would have been necessary to raise rates higher than they were raised, and they would never have come down without producing deficits to be paid out of taxation. But, due to the increase in plant investment and efficiency in operation, the railroads of this country have been enabled to reduce rates since 1920 to the extent of at least 700 million dollars a year.

"But beyond this the railroads have made a great contribution toward reducing the cost of living. Last year the average time in transit was nearly cut in half. This automatically reduced the amount of raw material which manufacturers have to accumulate in advance of production. It reduced the stocks which wholesalers and retailers must maintain in order to carry a given volume of business. The effect was to lessen costs of production and distribution and to diminish the possibility of over-production and consequent unemployment.

"At this moment the railroads are carrying the best crops of recent years, selling at advantageous prices to the farmer, and these crops are going to market with adequate car supply and prompt movement. The farmer is being enabled to translate his crops rapidly into ready money; but it would make little difference to him how high the prices of his crops were if he could not move them to market.

"The supreme interest of every producer and consumer is in adequate and efficient transportation; and that interest the railroads of the country are loyally serving."

JEAN PATOU

M. Jean Patou, of Paris, leading designer of women's apparel, and called the best dressed man in France, has reached New York for an intensive study of the American woman, so he can design gowns for her. He brought with him sixty suits of clothing, 150 shirts and 300 neckties, all expertly chosen to smart color combinations and contrasts. He is a bachelor, girls!

Claims Negroes Took His $1,240

Fred Perkins, a Member of the California Carnival Shows, Came to Kingston to be Married and Says He Was Waylaid and Robbed of $1,240.

Fred Perkins of Somerville, Mass., a member of the California Shows, the carnival company that played here the past summer for the Excelsior Horse Company, came to Kingston Tuesday evening to prepare for his wedding. He informed the police about 10:30 o'clock that evening that he arrived here about 10 o'clock and started to walk through Pine Grove avenue to see some friends on Summer street, where he expected to spend the night. Near the corner of Pine Grove avenue and Susan street, he said, he was knocked down by two negroes who robbed him of $1,240 which he had in a vest pocket, stole his hand bag and his diamond stick pin, valued at $15, and then made their escape.

The police force worked all night on the case, together with officials from the sheriff's office, but could find no trace of any negroes resembling the description furnished by Perkins.

Effect of Great War on Wealth of World

The aggregate prewar wealth of the twenty odd nations actively engaged in the great war, according to an estimate recently completed by the research department of the Bankers' Trust company of New York, amounted to $630,000,000,000. The wealth of these same nations today is estimated to be about $819,000,000,000. The prewar wealth of the British empire—that is, of Great Britain, the Dominion, India and the crown colonies—was approximately $140,000,000,000, while today the wealth of this same group of nations is estimated to be around $149,000,000,000. The wealth of France before the war is placed at just under $300,000,000,000, and is estimated to be approximately the same today.

The prewar wealth of the United States is placed at $200,000,000,000, and the wealth today at $230,000,000,000, while the prewar wealth of Germany is estimated to have been upward of $80,000,000,000 and today to be about $55,000,000,000. These figures are all on the gold prewar basis of values, having been adjusted for inflation. The per capita wealth of Great Britain today is placed at $1,480 and of the different nations composing the British empire at $418, including the wealth and population of India. The wealth of France is estimated in 1913 to be $1,484 per capita and of the United States $2,000 per capita. The wealth of Germany is placed at $501 per capita.

The Bankers' Trust company points out that the total wealth of the former belligerents has not materially changed as a result of the war, but that there has been a marked redistribution of such wealth, this redistribution having taken place not only as between nations, but also as between the peoples within the boundaries of each nation. —Manufacturers' Record.

Idaho's National Park

The new national monument, Crater of the Moon, which has just been set aside by a proclamation issued by President Coolidge, is a region of volcanic formation situated 12 miles southwest of Arco on the Idaho Central highway, which connects Boise and all points west with Yellowstone National park. This new monument has an area of approximately 30 square miles and was called Crater of the Moon from the resemblance of its topography to the surface of the moon as seen through a telescope. The rocky lava is as fresh appearing as though poured out yesterday. The lava caves and tunnels occurring in the flows are perhaps the most interesting features. In some of the tunnels snow and ice are found which do not melt entirely the year round. The whole landscape has a weirdness which at certain seasons of the year takes on an exquisitely beautiful effect produced by the myriad clumps of delicately tinted wild flowers blooming in profusion on the black, cindery hillsides.

Has Seen Ghost of Prince

Strange manifestations, associated by some with the unseen world, are reported from Hall place, the beautiful old house in Kent, where tradition says the Black Prince wooed and won the "fair maid of Kent." For centuries stories have been told of the appearance, from time to time, of the armored ghost of the Black Prince whose visitations, say the Kentish people, always are made at times when England is in peril.

Lady Limerick, who lives in the haunted house, says she has seen the ghost three times, twice in the war and again recently.

"It has always been the same," she says, "and resembles a youth wearing armor while a light partially shrouds the body. It only stays for a second and then disappears."—London Mail.

Had to "See" Peter Pan

Though blinded in the war, a young Australian soldier named Penn wanted to "see" the statue of Peter Pan in London before he was sent home. I was asked, writes a contributor to Country Life, whether I would take him out the following Sunday.

"You know," he said, "I'm to return to Melbourne in a week or two, and I simply must see Peter Pan before I go."

When we reached the statue Penn put his hand upon it. "Why," he said, "it's smaller than I thought; I shall know it all."

Carefully he felt it piece by piece with little murmurs of delight. "Must look at this tiny mouse!" he would say. "See this 'lovely' little fairy; why, she is stretching up to speak to him!" Then again, "You are quite sure that I am not missing anything?"

and decide definitely at the next meeting.

The question of purchasing other street department machinery and equipment was also discussed and referred to the supply committee.

A Needed Improvement.

Superintendent Van Keuren was directed to fix Andrew street extension which leads to Montrose cemetery. This section of the street is greatly used by visitors to the cemetery, and Superintendent Van Keuren said he could place it in passable shape without great cost.

The work of laying asphalt on Andrew street is progressing.

Clarendon Avenue Wants Water.

The residents of Clarendon avenue, part of a new development on Albany avenue, desire city water, and Seth Jocelyn appeared before the board in regard to the matter. This street has never been deeded to the city. There are six families living on the street at the present time and they are using well water.

Esopus Bridge Opens Nov. 10.

County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran appeared before the board and stated that it was expected to open to traffic the Esopus creek bridge at Higgsville about November 10.

The board will inspect the bridge Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Signs and Other Matters.

A communication was read from Chief of Police Wood who suggested that it might be well to replace the present traffic standard at Wall and North Front streets, with a smaller standard. The present standard is said to be dangerous to the traffic officer, as owing to its size he cannot have a clear view of all traffic. The chief called attention to the injury received by Officer James V. Simpson while on traffic duty at that point, and said that Officer Simpson was still confined to his home.

The communication was referred to Commissioner Chandler to take the matter up with Chief Wood, and if thought wise to do so to go ahead and replace the present standard with one of smaller type.

The Book Shop at 6 St. James street asked permission to erect an electric sign in front of the shop. It was referred to the superintendent with power.

The same action was taken in the requests of the Highway Displays, Inc. for a sign at 555 Broadway; the Kingston Taxi Consolidated, Inc., at No. 19 Railroad avenue; Franklin Lodge, No. 37, K of P.

Want More Light.

A communication from the conservatory of the Reformed Church of Kingston requested that two of the proposed new large city street lights be installed in front of the church property on Wynkoop Place. The matter was referred to the lighting committee.

The request of the Michaud-Campbell Company to use part of the street for storing material when erection was started on the Kuhlmann garage on upper Broadway was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren.

Fire Destroyed Grand View Inn

One of Largest Summer Boarding Houses in Riffon Wiped Out By Fire of Unknown Origin—Unoccupied at Time of Fire.

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed Grand View Inn, one of the largest summer boarding houses in Riffon, at an early hour this morning, also destroying the adjoining buildings on the property. The inn was owned by a New York lawyer named Shapiro.

The fire was discovered about 1 o'clock and the flames soon enveloped the entire structure which was of frame construction, three stories in height, about 200 feet long by 100 feet deep, containing about 150 rooms.

Near the main building was located the ice house, pump-house and a small bungalow, all of which were destroyed. Only smoking ruins are now visible.

The inn sat on a hill about a mile from the village of Riffon and directly opposite the new lake formed by the United Hudson Electric Company's development at that place. The building was erected about ten years ago.

At the time of the fire the house was vacant. Whether there was any insurance carried was not ascertained.

Achievements of Boy Scouts Here

Captain of Scout Financial Campaign Answers Question of Scout Accomplishment—$1,465.75 Are Pledged to Date.

One of the team captains said Tuesday night that he had been asked the following question on a number of occasions during the past two days: "What have the scouts of Ulster county accomplished since they were organized?"

"If I were to answer that question in full, that is, give every detail that has come to our attention at headquarters, I am afraid that the editor of this paper would not publish it all, so I will answer by just hitting the high spots."

Daily Good Turns.

"The scouts were the first on the job at the Phoenix bridge accident and did police duty at the detour for two weeks, as a good turn to their community."

The scouts were called upon by William Schwarzwelder Co. on Halloween and saved that firm more than $100 worth of damage and the boys doing the police work as scouts were the same boys who the year before when not members of the scouts were causing all the trouble. Was that worth while?

"The scouts have been called upon for the last three years to assist at the Kingston Exposition as messengers and do police duty around the edge of the big tents. For this the scouts received the appreciation of the Chamber of Commerce. Just another good turn."

"At the Farm Bureau picnic the scouts were again used as police, messengers and as assistants at the various tents. They said they appreciated the service."

"In the schools when anything is wanted, who is called to do it? The scouts. 'There's a reason.'"

"Last year and again this year when the police department of Kingston looked around for help to assist them by taking over the policing of corners where schools were located (three times every school day) did they pick just a bunch of boys to do the job? They certainly did not but the scouts were asked to do the job and have been doing it for more than a year. There is only one reason for turning this very important job of looking after these young children (and maybe one of them is your child) over to the scouts and that is a scout can be depended upon, he is trustworthy."

"When New Paltz gave their big pageant this year it was the scouts who were called upon to do all the little odd jobs that came up and those are the hard jobs and nobody ever wants to do them, but all you have to do is to mention service and a scout will answer the call."

"The Community Christmas Tree in Kingston as well as those all over the county have been policed by scouts. Ask yourself again, why scouts?"

"When there is to be a job done for the Red Cross, Near East Relief, the church, or any of the various organizations and city departments, whether large or small, the first thought that comes to the minds of those in charge is 'Call a scout, he will do it.' Why, because his slogan is 'Do a Good Turn Daily' and his motto is, 'Be Prepared.'"

"This takes in only local requests for service. If we had the space to go into it you would be surprised to know of the requests for service that come from National Organizations as well as from our Government, both national and state. Why does the President of the United States or the Governor of our state ask for scouts do you suppose? Right now scouts are being urged to assist in getting all citizens out on Election day to vote."

Being Prepared.

"We have told you only of the slogan 'Do a Good Turn Daily,' what about the motto 'Be Prepared.'"

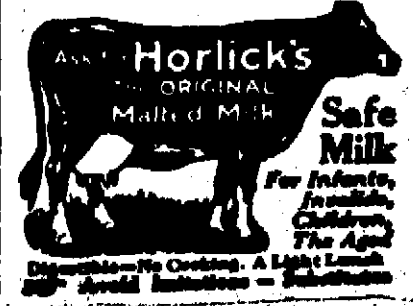

"Three Scouts of Saugerties, all on different occasions, by being prepared have been able to save lives. One during the winter when a boy fell through the ice and because of his scout training was able to save this boy's life. During the summer another scout saved his chum's life and still another scout swam out in the river and saved the life of a lady 35 pounds heavier than himself. Is Scouting worth while?"

"Two boys out in the woods two miles from home, one cut an artery in his leg, the other, a scout, knows what to do, he put on a tourniquet stops the flow of blood and carries his friend by a fireman's lift to a doctor two miles away. The doctor said that this scout's knowledge of first aid saved his friend's life. That's being prepared."

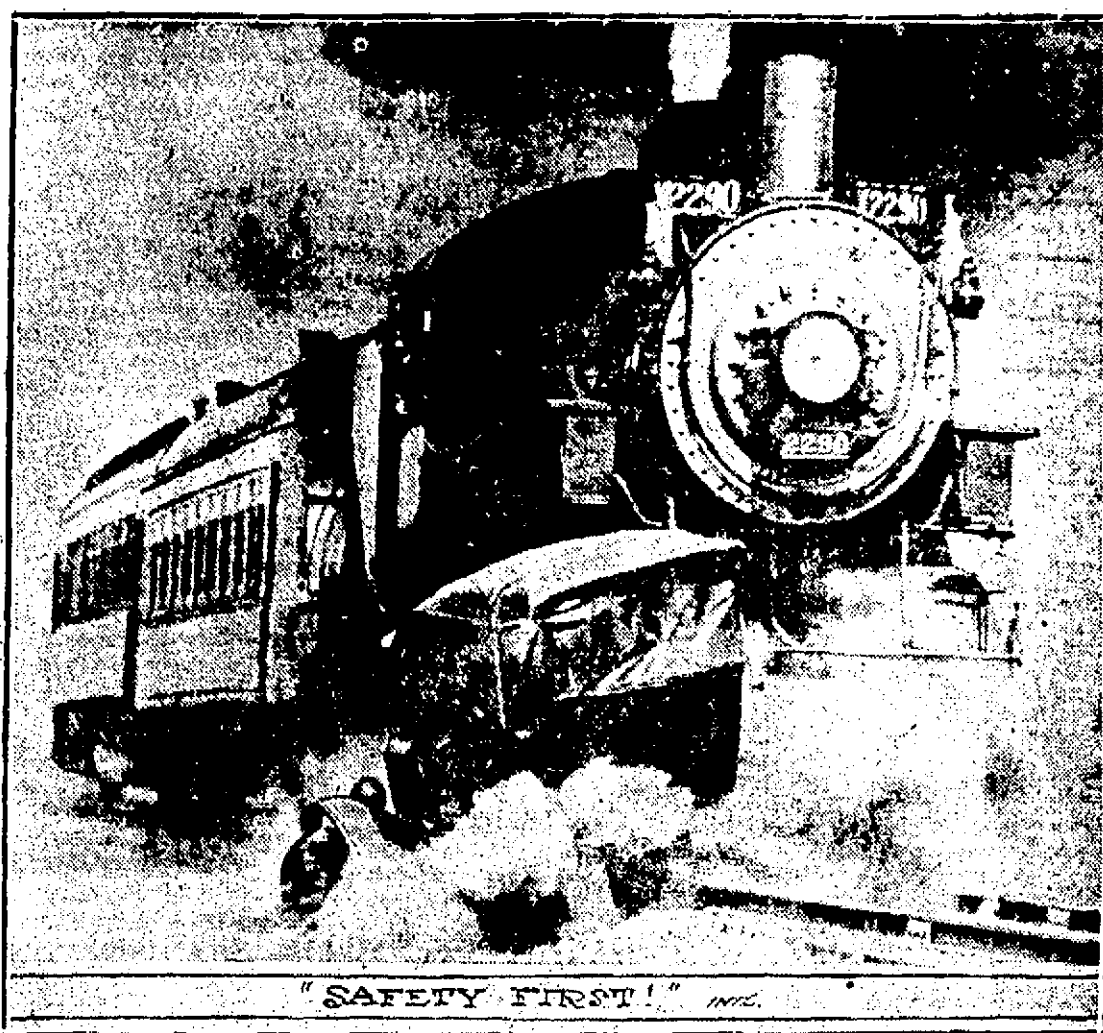

"Here in Kingston a scout and his older brother and wife were out swimming, the wife went under, the husband tried to save her but she got hold of him and they both went down, the scout ten years younger than this brother, did not hesitate, but went after both, got in back of them and brought them both to shore. He was prepared because he had received scout training."

"Another case of being prepared happened in Highland. A younger brother swallowed poison. The scout having passed his first class test in first aid, knew what to do when it was impossible to get a doctor. When the doctor did arrive he said that the promptness of the scout in administering an emetic undoubtedly saved his brother's life. His parents wrote and thanked the scout organization for what it had done for their son."

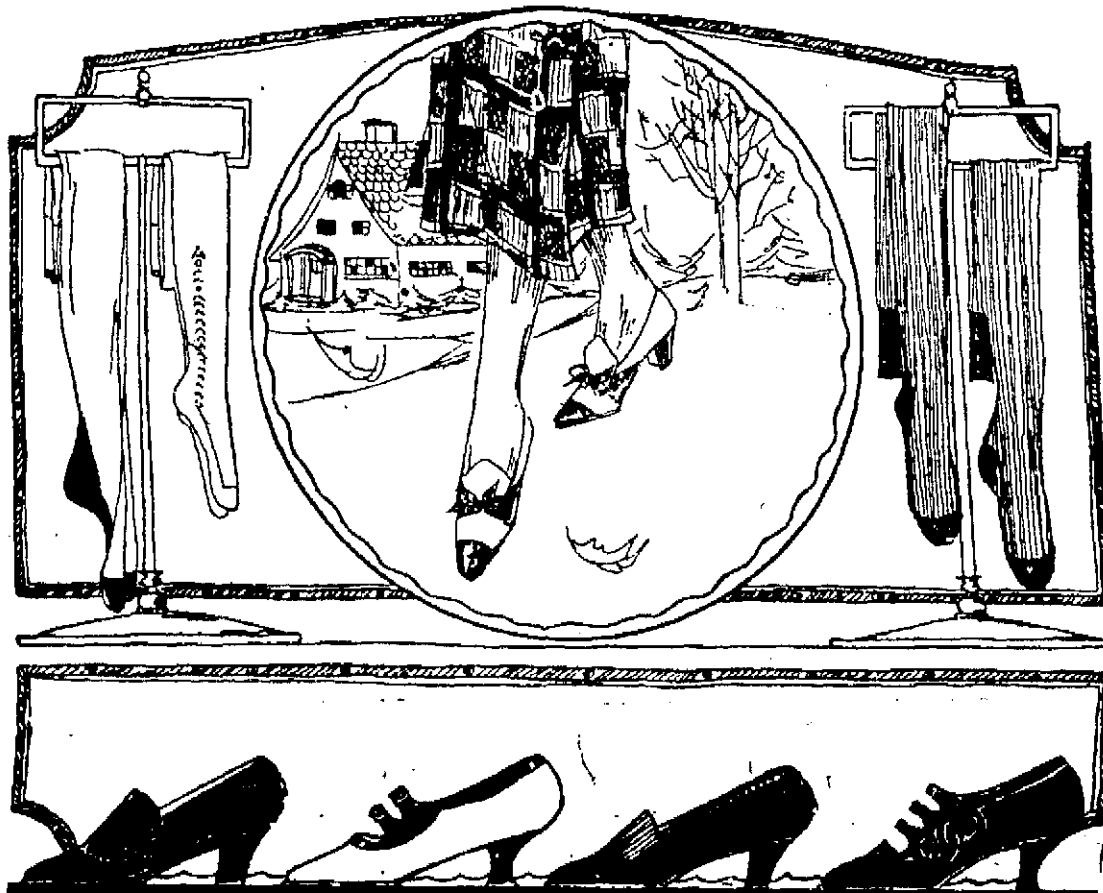

"Another thing that is worth while mentioning here is that Judge Pow-

WARNING FOR CARELESS MOTORISTS!

No one was killed in this motor disaster, which was staged by the Southern Pacific at Florence, Cal., so motion picture operators could photograph it in the railroad's perpetual "Safety First" campaign against careless motorists who try to race trains across grade crossings.

Pumps of simple design and oxfords of black and brown kid are Fashion's decree for feminine footwear for winter. Four models are here illustrated—one with an outside buttoned tongue effect, another with a tongue of pleated kid, and two with instep straps. They are usually of black kid or one of the modish shades of brown, Havana, mahogany or dark brown. The stockings worn with these shoes may be sheer and should match perfectly the color of the brown shoes. Thus with the dark brown pumps, brown hosiery with brown clocks, and gun-metal hose with the black oxfords. The walking shoes seen in the circle are of two shades of brown kid and are worn with hose that exactly match the lighter shade of kid. Incidentally the tiny bow ties at the base of the Colonial tongue strike a new note in smart footwear decoration.

Have Yet to Learn Much About Disease

What is disease? Everybody knows that disease involves a physical injury to tissue cells, but what and how? The truth is, we are really only at the beginning of our knowledge of the cause of disease. We must be able to measure exactly the injury, the vitality and the degree of recovery of body cells to find the answer, writes Paul H. De Krul in the American Mercury.

Recently a man named Osterhout, obscure save among biologists, has made a step toward answering the question. Working with a common sea-weed, laminaria, he has begun to give exact meanings to the hitherto vague terms, vitality, injury and recovery. He has found that normal weeds possess a certain resistance to the passage of an electric current, that this resistance may be accurately measured, and that it is always of exactly the same order of magnitude for the cells of healthy laminaria. But take the cells out of their natural environment in sea water and put them in solutions of different content and density, and their resistance to the electric current falls at once. The greater the damage to the cells the greater the fall.

The coincidence of the fall in resistance with the degree of injury has enabled Osterhout to construct equations which predict the exact amount of injury that the cells of laminaria will suffer. He can write down just how much and how long a cell can be exposed to damage and still recover completely. In brief, Osterhout measures injury, vitality and recovery. That is the beginning of science. That is the real beginning of the answer to the question: "What is disease?"

Uncharted Rocks Are Terror to Mariners

Uncharted rocks and islands of the sea have mysterious ways of dodging and befouling mapmakers. Sometimes they are dangerous. One of the worst, Lamb rock, was found about thirty years ago coming straight up to the surface in water 200 feet deep. It was like a cathedral spire and rose straight into the middle of the Canadian river lane into the St. Lawrence river. In calm weather its tip was 33 feet below the surface. This is a bare margin of safety, but in rough weather the rock was a lurking peril to any big ship that might come along.

Huge Insect Collection

The British museum possesses by far the most comprehensive insect collection in the world, says London Tit-Bits. It has not until quite recently been possible to make an exact catalogue of all items, but after three years' work one has now been completed and published.

According to this, the collection contains 1,118,000 insects. There are 225,767 butterflies of 40,210 different kinds, 398,000 beetles of 67,800 different kinds. Of bees, wasps and winged ants there are 18,000 kinds. Of bugs, flies, gnats and mosquitoes there are 7,287 species represented; of grasshopper types 3,900, and of plant lice 21 species in 140 items.

Private donors have done most to swell the collection. One alone gave 290,000 insects, another 30,000, while one entire collection of butterflies which was presented consisted of 31,000.

Monitor and Maritime

On May 15, 1862, in company with the Galena, the Naugatuck, Port Royal, and Aristoook, the Monitor participated in an unsuccessful attempt to capture Richmond, and on December 31, 1862, while en route to Beaufort, N. C., she foundered in stormy weather off Hatteras, four officers and seventeen men being drowned. The Merrimack was destroyed when the Norfolk yard was evacuated by the Confederates on May 11, 1862.

Bible May Be Clue to Murder

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Oxford, N. J., Oct. 29.—Police today are following a clue asserted to repose in a worn little Bible found among the effects of Mrs. Grace Thomas when her almost nude body and her personal belongings were recovered in an abandoned mine shaft near here. She had been shot through the jaw and the heart.

The little book disclosed a name which state troopers would not reveal.

Mrs. Thomas's husband, Frank, 42, under arrest as a material witness, maintains he knows nothing of his wife's death. He said she disappeared several days ago following a quarrel. He would not disclose the reason for the quarrel. They had parted once before, he said, but had made up.

May Clear Woods Of All Hunters

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 29.—The fire hazard in the Adirondack preserve has become so great that Governor Al E. Smith today issued a proclamation, leaving the date blank, authorizing State Conservation Commissioner Alexander McDonald to order all hunters, trappers and pleasure seekers out of the woods.

At present, the governor said, fires are raging in 12 different places although none are considered serious. Under the proclamation as signed by the governor all state agencies, including fire wardens and state police, would comb the woods and see that every person departed immediately.

"There has not been a drop of rain in the Adirondacks in the last month," the governor said. "We must protect the woods at all costs."

More than a score of small fires in the woods already have been extinguished. The largest burned over sixty acres of timber before being put out.

On Growing Old

When we become old, we want to get off the streets. We always sympathize with the old men who have nothing to do, who are not wanted anywhere and who have no place to go. When we become old and useless, we want a place of our own to go to, a place that is absolutely our own and which we can manage as we please. We hope it will be a little place where we can potter around with fruits and flowers and vegetables and chickens, and keep busy. We don't want to give people the opportunity to show neglect nor idle time in which to see visions of the grim monster. Old men who loiter about the streets, it seems to us, make a mistake.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

War Fortunes May Be Disclosed

Publicity of Income Tax Figures May Become Retroactive—Attorney General Stone to Bring Test Case to Test Legality.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 29.—Litigation which the government will start soon after election to determine the legality or illegality of newspaper publication of income taxes may bring many surprises. This was admitted today by government officials.

It was pointed out that, should the courts uphold the legality of publishing the returns and decide the 1924 tax law is retroactive it might open the way for the disclosure of income taxes paid for past years, and disclose who made the enormous "war fortunes" compiled between 1915 and 1920.

Attorney General Stone has adopted a middle of the road attitude. He plans to bring a test case soon after election and let the courts take the responsibility of deciding whether or not newspapers which published the returns are liable to prosecution. Ultimately the issue will go to the supreme court.

It is probable that one newspaper will be singled out for the test and the case expedited so that congress, at its next session, may take remedial action on the basis of the decision.

Will Summon Three Chairman

Protest of Republican State Chairman Morris Against Being Singled Out for Examination Brings Results.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 29.—George K. Morris, Republican state chairman in New York, today wired the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, protesting against being compelled to come to Washington to testify unless the Democratic and Progressive state chairmen were also called.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, committee chairman, said that Morris's suggestion was "reasonable" and that the other party chairmen would also be summoned. They will appear either tomorrow or Friday.

Goulds Battled With Millions

Railroad Control Led Trustees of Jay Gould Estate to Invest Millions in Their Struggle With Harriman.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 29.—A terrific fight involving hundreds of millions of dollars, between E. H. Harriman and the Gould interests for railroad supremacy was revealed here today for the first time by Edwin Gould.

He was testifying in the suit for an accounting of the $82,000,000 Jay Gould estate. The fight ended, he testified before a referee, in the collapse of the Gould lines.

Edwin was a trustee and executor under his father's will. He testified that his brother, George, from 1900 until 1910, had a consuming ambition to extend the Missouri Pacific railroad into a transcontinental system from Baltimore to San Francisco.

George, therefore, acquired control of the Washash, Denver and Rio Grande, Western Pacific and Western Maryland railroads. That conflicted with Harriman's plans. The Goulds feared he would bottle up the Missouri Pacific.

That struggle, Edwin testified, continued for years, the final result being the collapse of the Gould lines. Edwin said he consented to the estate putting millions into the Missouri Pacific when outside support failed of materialization.

Origin of Silk Culture
Although silk culture originated in China and the very name China finds its birth in a term meaning "silk people," the United States looks to Japan for most of this raw material. American mills are weaving nearly 50,000,000 pounds of raw silk annually, of which about 80 per cent comes from Japanese mulberry orchards, says the Detroit News. The ugly little silk worm is treated with great respect in the Orient, for it brings to the far eastern peoples more than $300,000,000 from the United States alone.

Garrison-Crook.

Miss Anna L. Crook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Crook of Walton, was united in marriage to Morgan R. Garrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Garrison of Arkville and this city, on Saturday afternoon last at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. R. Howland, Walton. The Rev. A. A. Walker, pastor of the Walton M. E. Church, officiated. The home was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and palms. The presence of fifty guests. Previous to the ceremony Mrs. Harold Combs sang, "O Promise Me," and during the ceremony she played Lohengrin's wedding march. The bridesmaid was Miss Fannie M. Garrison, sister of the groom, and the best man, Herbert E. Sprague of Liberty. The flower girls were the Howland twins, Florence and Frances. The bride was attired in a white satin crepe wedding gown, with pearl and silver trimmings with an embroidered lace veil surmounted by coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was crowned in yellow cactus crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girls wore pale green or yellow roses and carried baskets of yellow roses and chrysanthemums. A wedding luncheon was served after the ceremony. The gifts were many and beautiful. The couple will spend a four months' honeymoon in the south. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Howland, Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Crook, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Combs, Mrs. Howard Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shaver, Mrs. A. A. Walker, Walton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. # DELTA OF the YANGTZE

Battle Area Near Shanghai.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
The region around Shanghai, where the first fighting occurred in China's latest civil war, is in the delta of the Yangtze Kiang, a lowland as level as a table rising very little above the sea. It might be compared to the delta of the Mississippi if that area, instead of being sparsely settled and largely given over to cane-brakes and semi-swamps, had millions of inhabitants to whom land was so valuable that they could not afford to waste a single square foot of it.

Thanks to centuries of tireless labor, the country surrounding Shanghai is the garden spot of China. Every bit of dry ground—much of it made dry by main force—is intensively cultivated save the plots given over to burying grounds, and even from these, straw is harvested for fuel. The fields lie about five or six feet above the water level of the canals. Thousands upon thousands of the latter have been dug to take the place of bays in unimproved delta lands. They have the threefold purpose of providing drainage, furnishing irrigation when that is necessary and serving at all times as highways.

These canals are of economic value in still other ways. Flood waters from the Yangtze are made to traverse them, so spreading abroad and losing their threat of inflicting damage; and the silt thus deposited in the canal bottoms is dug out and spread on the fields, at once fertilizing them and raising them to a safe level. Most of these numerous canals are about 15 or 20 feet wide so that maneuvering armies over the territory has its difficulties.

Shanghai was once situated on the seashore, but the land has now been built approximately 20 miles farther north and east, leaving it inland. At another time the Yangtze ran by the present site of the city, but has since shifted its course, perhaps many times, until it now lies twelve miles away. The city is now on a small tidal river, the Huang Pu, which flows into the Yangtze at Woosung. This stream has been dredged to considerable depth and a tidal basin is maintained above the city to keep it flushed out.

The rapid growth of the delta which has enclosed Shanghai is easily understood when the vast amount of sediment carried by the Yangtze is considered. In a single year the stream brings down from the hills of inland China enough solid material to construct an island one mile square and 90 feet deep. Much of this is captured in great lakes and swamps that once covered much of the region. Through the ages many of these have been filled up, and as fast as land emerged it was seized and dyked by the tides of the sea. Along the seashore, too, the Chinese protect their new land. Along the coast within 100 miles of Shanghai are more than 800 miles of sea wall.

Shanghai Really Occidental.
Shanghai presents something of a paradox. In it dwell upward of two million Chinese, yet it is essentially a western, not an oriental, community. The city was small and inconsequential from the time when it first appears in the records, 1035 A. D., until 1841 when it became one of the five Chinese treaty ports opened to western commerce. A large tract of neighboring ground was leased to Britons and later concessions were made to citizens of France, the United States and other foreign countries. Within a generation or so the native city surrounded by its wall was eclipsed by the "international city" that had sprung up on the foreign concessions. The growth of the latter, community in recent years has been so rapid as to outclass American and Australian boom towns. In 1910 the combined communities of Shanghai had less than half a million inhabitants; in fourteen years, the population has quadrupled, practically all the increase being in the international and the French territories.

The foreign section of Shanghai is marked by broad streets, substantial construction, cleanliness, and such modern facilities as electric and gas lights, tramways, paved streets and waterworks. Much more potent in making Shanghai attractive to increasing thousands of natives, however, are the honesty of administration, reasonable taxes, and protection of life, property and civic rights. The Chinese residents of the foreign concessions are welcome to enjoy Shanghai's facilities and share its prosperity, but they have no voice in the government of the municipality. The latter is a sort of closed corporation operated by the foreign property holders, chiefly British. The municipality has its police force consisting of Europeans, Sikhs from British India and some Chinese.

The city is in atmosphere a hybrid of the East and the West. And of the western element gaiety is probably most pronounced. Working hours for Europeans and Americans are anything but burdensome. Ten o'clock is the opening time for many offices; the Spanish plan of a siesta has been borrowed for the period from 12 to 2 in numerous lines of activity; and it is not unusual for offices to close at 4 o'clock. The western community in Shanghai enjoys its sports, and casinos, clubs, golf links, tennis courts, and cricket fields are crowded during the late afternoon hours.

Probably only Cairo is more cosmopolitan than Shanghai. Nationals of almost every civilized country in the world are to be met on the streets. On the Bund or water-front esplanade, which is the heart of Shanghai, Europeans are more in evidence than on most other streets, all apparently prosperous and leisurely. In the afternoons a parade of fashion that might do justice to show streets of Europe or America takes place on Bubbling Spring road, where both handsome motor cars and fine horses are in evidence.

There is enough "local color" in Shanghai to make even the most strenuous globe-trotter pause. The complexity of Shanghai life bursts upon one as soon as he debarks at the quay and the city's amazing array of transportation devices is disclosed. Drawn up to the curb are rickshaws, wheelbarrows, pony carriages, and automobiles, while in the street are electric trams. Nor does this exhaust the transportation methods. In the native quarter one may see high-born Chinese women, all but hidden by silk curtains, borne in palanquins; while near the freight docks coolies stagger under huge crates or carry strange bales suspended from bamboo poles.

Coolies and Canals.
The coolie and the good facilities for water transportation are the two principal economic factors that have contributed to Shanghai's obvious prosperity. With his wheelbarrow and his stalwart shoulders the coolie of Shanghai has reduced the movement of package freight to a seemingly ridiculous figure, yet he is content with his meager wage because it is more than he could obtain in a purely Chinese city. The numerous canals make the bringing of country produce to the city's markets an exceedingly simple and cheap matter; and now that the river has been dredged the largest ocean freighters can tie up directly at the quays of the Bund. Cheap labor and cheap transportation coupled with western capital and technical and managerial ability have made the city an important industrial center. Steel mills, ship-building yards, cotton and silk factories and numerous other industrial establishments have sprung up along the Huang Pu. An astonishing number of warehouses adds to Shanghai's large buildings, for this city has come to be the depository of imported goods for even remote parts of the republic.

Costumes run the gamut from loin cloths to gorgeous mandarin robes, embracing on the way the "night shirts" and red turbans of off-duty Sikh policemen, Siamese panangs, impeccable European street clothes, and the military uniforms of almost every nation of the earth. On almost any street one may meet Chinese fops carrying ornamental bird cages as they give their feathered pets the air. The bird market in the native city is one of the most interesting sights of Shanghai. Not far off is the Willow tea house, supposed to be the prototype of the design of Chinese willow ware.

The first railroad built in China was a 12-mile stretch from Shanghai to its port on the Yangtze. The imperial authorities tore it up, but it served to plant the railroad seed which later sprouted lustily. Shanghai also had the first telephones in China.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 29.—Prices inclined to lower levels in a dull and featureless market today. Selling pressure was directed against the industrial and specialty stocks, but the movement was by no means uniform, since a number of prominent stocks, like American Tobacco, Mallinson Silk, Montgomery Ward, etc., were strong enough to record new high prices for the current movement.

The underlying strength of the market was seen in the easy absorption of United States Steel, American Steel, American Can and other of the leading industrials which were thrown on the market in the first hour and in the prompt rally in prices which followed the clearing of the overhang. Efforts of the bear party, to cause a general unsettlement of prices were unsuccessful and in the third and fourth hours the market approached the condition of stalemated.

The quick rise of American Tobacco to 156½, up 5 points from the previous close, was due to the action of the directors in placing the stock on a 14 per cent dividend basis preparatory to splitting up the stock on a 2 for 1 ratio next month.

Call money ruled at 2½ per cent. Quotations given by C. G. Halsey & Co., 27 William street, New York city, branch office, Warren Building, 260-62 Fair street, Kingston, N. Y.

HOW TO GROW A DIAMOND

A TRAVELLER one day heard a man make the assertion that he knew how to grow diamonds. A friend accused him of either being a real genius or an enemy of the truth, and insisted on knowing something of this discovery, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. So the traveller told him: I learned this method from Safford & Scudder (My Jeweller) in Kingston. They formed a Diamond Growing Club, and the members started by selecting a small diamond and later had it exchanged for a larger stone, and in every transaction he allowed full purchase price of the last diamond bought. I joined the Club and planted $25.00 in a small diamond. It was a small diamond I know. The next month, cutting down on my smoking, shoe-trunking, a few knives, left me a little surplus, so when I again hit Kingston I had $20.00 to the good, so I looked up my Jeweller and traded the drop for a $5.00 diamond. I did this over and over again, till now I have a real beauty, blue-white and a perfect diamond, the kind My Jeweller sells.

File Papers in
Cozy Dolan Suit

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 29.—Papers in the proposed suit against Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to force him to pay Cozy Dolan a share of the New York Giants' world's series money will be filed this week, probably before Friday, it was said here today by William J. Fallon, attorney for the former coach. Dolan was banished from the Giants club following charges by Jimmy O'Connell, outfielder, that Dolan sent him to Heinie Sand, Philadelphia short stop, with an offer to throw a game to the Giants.

The papers will be filed in the federal court in the southern district of New York, it was said. The suit may also contain a demand for damages for alleged slander, Fallon said.

Original Celtics
Meet Kingston
Quintet Tonight

Kingston-Celtics is the title of the performance that is expected to be viewed by a record crowd this evening at the armory stage. This offering has been looked forward to for some time past and the meeting tonight with its galaxy of players is favored to please the severest critics. Johnny Beckman, well known to local fandom, is at the head of a strong supporting cast for the Irish, which includes Nat Holman, who plays in the front with him. Nat as most local fandom knows, wrote the book about basketball. In the center position Lopchick and Denhart are available and in the background Darry and Leonard.

Carl Husta will take the lead for the Morgenweckers and will be supported by N. Husta in front or Sime with Powers at center and Artus and Riconda in the guard positions. The above talent have had experiences before on the local court and good games resulted. The claimants of the world's championship know the strength of a Morgenweck combination and will come here this evening determined to take home the honors. The Shamrock wearers are a formidable team and a hard crowd to down, but Morgenweck accomplished this feat before and he would not be surprised at tonight's result, whatever the ultimate is.

The game is scheduled for the usual time with dancing following. Music by the Imperial orchestra.

Harvard Team to Honor Haughton

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Oct. 29.—The body of Percy Haughton, famous football coach, arrived here early today from New York. Haughton was stricken while coaching Columbia's squad and died within an hour. The body was accompanied by a party of six from Columbia. Out of respect for the former Harvard football coach, the Crimson team will hold no practice tomorrow, the day of the funeral. Services will be held from the Cathedral of St. Paul here and at Columbia University, simultaneously. All of Harvard's coaches and others identified with the college will attend the funeral.

ATHLETE WILL FACE
ROBBERY CHARGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 29.—In custody of a detective, Joseph Di Silvia, a wrestler and boxer, under indictment for robbery and other alleged offenses committed almost three years ago, left here this morning for Niagara Falls, N. Y. George Phelps, said to have been Di Silvia's accomplice in burglaries, is serving a term in the Auburn, N. Y., state prison. Di Silvia, arrested here a few days ago, also was an aviator of some note and made quite a reputation for himself under the name of Bob Dugan.

Ohio State Has Good Outlook

Backeyes Now Titled "Hitless Wonders," Having Won Contests With Little Scoring—Tough Schedule Ahead Will Prove Mettle.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Dr. John Wilce, a scholarly soul and just a bit austere, had been telling the writer in his precise way just what men had made a good team at Ohio State in 1924 out of a bad team in 1923. Subsequently, for purposes of accuracy, I asked:

"Just who were these men you esteem?"

"I esteem them all," he said, looking over at the teams practicing on the gridiron.

"Why, you big palooka." His tone was that of a man who inadvertently had swallowed banana oil in place of mayonnaise and a depressing silence fell upon all.

"I've been telling you for a week where to stand on that shift." The doctor clutched the big palooka by the loose of his jersey and urgently but not unfirmly, showed him where to stand.

"Yes I have a pretty good team," he continued reflectively. "It looks like our best since 1921, when we were beaten out of the conference championship in the last minute of the season. Oh, awful. Let me at him."

They let the doctor at him. The latter was seemingly a very estimable young man who had just plunged through the center of the line for ten yards.

"Didn't I tell you not to run that way? You were all bent up like a safety pin. When you hit the line, hit it this way."

Dr. Wilce abruptly charged the hapless individual, head up and brushed him right out of his (the doctor's) path. He dusted his hands and came back.

"My new men, developed this season, have made the Ohio State team what it is," he remarked, conversationally. "They are Dreyer, a guard; Jenkins, a tackle and Hunt and Karow, backs. My veterans are Young and Watts, centers; Kutler, a guard; Nichols, a tackle; Wilson, an end and Wendler, a back.

"Cunningham and Gorrille, ends, were 1923 substitutes, so was Cameron, my quarterback, who is being used only as a field director, after the old Harvard system. Klee, who tied Chicago with his field goal, hurt his shoulder early last year and was out for the season. Karow is my best running back this year, although the attack in general might be better.

"But I have a real line, a charging line. They say a team is no stronger than its forward line. Therefore mine—"

Suddenly, he moaned audibly. The attacking team had just scored a touchdown.

"Come back," weary resignation was in his voice. "Come back to the twenty yard line and try it all over again."

As the doctor was saying, he estimates all of the men. They have made a good record in conference football to date, beating Purdue and getting ties with Chicago and Iowa. They will have games to play with Indiana, Michigan and Illinois.

In Cunningham, he has one of the heaviest ends in captivity. He weighs 196 pounds and is reasonably agile for a man of his embonpoint.

Because of their ability to win or tie without undue scoring, a local wag has termed the Buckeyes the "hitless wonders," thereby driving Dr. Wilce into a high dudgeon. He seems to think that this is giving his boys the worst of it.

Yet it is significant that he is using the shift for many of his running plays. This would seem to indicate that his attack needs unnatural aid. In connection with this, he added:

"We miss the forward passing of Stinchcomb and Hoge.

"We have no man who can throw them far down the field, thus opening the way for the short pass. But you can't have everything."

Church Bowling
League Organized

Will Open Season Wednesday Evening, November 5.—To Meet Tuesday and Wednesday Evenings Thereafter—Three-Men Teams to Compete.

At a meeting of representatives of the various churches of the city Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A., a Church Bowling League was organized, and the league will open the season Wednesday evening, November 5. Games will be rolled each Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock and Wednesday evenings at 7 and 9 o'clock. Those desiring to enter church teams in the league should file application before Saturday.

At the meeting Tuesday the following churches were represented: St. James' M. E. Church by Frank DuPont; Congregational Church by Edith Flowers; Albany Avenue Baptist Church by Charles Snyder; Roman Catholic Church by Tom Rowland; Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church by Chester Baltz; and Fair Street Reformed Church by Arthur Wicks.

The league organized and elected the following officers: President, Frank DuPont; vice president, Chester Baltz; secretary and treasurer, Edith Flowers.

As all entries to the league close on Saturday those churches desiring to enter the league should get in touch with Physical Director Duley at the Y before that time.

The teams entered will be three-men teams.

Feller's Auto Stolen.

Albert Feller of 69 South Manor avenue reported to the police this morning that his Nash touring car had been stolen some time during the night.

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?
Symptoms: Slender, slight, hair rather longish in front, thin, knife-edged face, sweet, big-mouth smile, always wears a collar which seems to hate his neck, a four-in-hand tie, a turned-up bangkok sailor, and a soft brown, warm brim pancake felt in winter. He loves home and helping therein; he is dependable, funds enough, shady, likes you to be with him at baseball and Kelly pool.

IN FACT
He is game and gamier in your companionship.

Reflections of a
Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

YOU can always tell a bachelor from a married man by his responsiveness to flattery—the married man's responsiveness.

Jealousy is the autocracy of the heart; and the surest way to lose your dominion over a man's affections is to let him feel the weight of the scepter.

A man is always grateful for the gift of a woman's friendship, but he regards her love more as a "souvenir" or a "premium" than as a gift.

Neither fear nor conscience ever made a man true to a woman; a man may smoke because he wants to, or drink because he likes to; but when he loves a woman it is because he can't HELP IT.

Contrary to the weather reports, this is the time of year when an eligible bachelor is most apt to get cold feet—from skating on the thin ice of flirtation.

When a man tells you that you remind him of some other woman, it is foolish to feel flattered; because when a man is in love with you, dearie, there is no other woman in the whole world just like you.

The man who lies under the car trying to fix the engine, while his wife sits back comfortably and tells him how things "ought to be done," can sympathize with all the women who ever tried to keep house or to cook for a man, since the dawn of civilization.

Oh, yes, there is a vast difference between knowledge and wisdom. Knowledge is what enables a woman to converse brilliantly in several languages; wisdom is what enables her to think in one language, and not tell anything in ANY.

WHAT ANY WIFE KNOWS

THAT all her rose leaves have turned to tea leaves.

That married life has not proved so wonderful after all.

That she would give anything to live her life all over again.

That it isn't so easy to be a successful, loving and interesting wife.

That she is no longer so pretty as she was.

That she knew her husband was going to propose long before he knew it himself.

That she also went halfway to meet him over it.

That her children are really perfectly ordinary.

That her courtship was the most ordinary, matter-of-fact affair under the sun.

That her husband does not love her quite so ardently and passionately as of yore.

That she would give ten years of her life to be as pretty as Lillian Russell.

That her husband frequently shows signs of boredom.

That she would rather be an independent worker.

That she will always love her husband, whatever happens.

ADHERE TO SIMPLE LINES

THERE is no getting away from the fact that women are disinclined to change from the straight-line silhouette that has dominated fashions for many seasons. In all their apparel, for either daytime or evening, they are devoted to garments that hang upon or drape the figure loosely—the chemise dress remains the foundation of the mode and there is not much likelihood of a change. These simple styles have back of them a growing sense of beauty and good taste, and the more women become informed the more they are appreciated.

Designers must depend upon novelty in materials, combinations of materials, adroit draperies and original ornamentation to give these straight-line dresses the required variety. It remains for women to individualize their simplest frocks by adding to them accessories of their own. Little
